Living labs

Second international workshop

Photo – log

Second international workshop within project Living Labs took place from 20th - 22nd of September in Schaan, Liechtenstein.

The aims of the workshop were to share experiences from national activities (projects), that were organised within Living Labs project this year, prepare starting points for writing a position paper about landscape and discuss the next project.

Project Living Labs is financed by Erasmus +.

CIPRA Liechtenstein:
Use all imagination to create two extreme ways of managing the landscape – completely touristic way or extreme nature protection. All happened on the map and gave the participants opportunity to see what these two options bring.

CIPRA Germany:
Travelling from Lindau (Bodensee) to Berchtesgaden to test the connections with public transport, interview young people about them and show the lack of them in this (east-west) direction.

CIPRA Slovenia:
Starting with a round table about Western capercaillie and cable car and ending with a fire in the Alps – a three day programme of workshops and hiking to Vršič pass.

CIPRA France: Production of short videos/interviews about landscape and tourism themes.

CIPRA Italy: Transformations of the Alpine landscape through images and testimonials – a lecture with photos of changing landscape through time and debate about drivers for it.

CIPRA South Tyrol: Two day workshop about effects of agriculture and tourism on landscape took place in Val Venosta; spending one day in Malles and one at the Stelvio.

CIPRA Austria: Two day hiking and camping for young people from the city – learning about “outdoor life”.

Key- Note: Landscape and participatory processes

©Alex Lloyd Jenkins 2014

Shaping landscapes through participatory processes is an important part in making sure people find a place attractive as a living space for generations to come. To approach such participatory planning processes – from micro to meso to macro scale – taking a community economies approach can be beneficial as it brings to light activities that support the good life of people and nature, which through other approaches often remain unconsidered or marginal. Community economies are about creating ways to sustain livelihoods that are about surviving well together, both amongst humans as well as humans and nature.

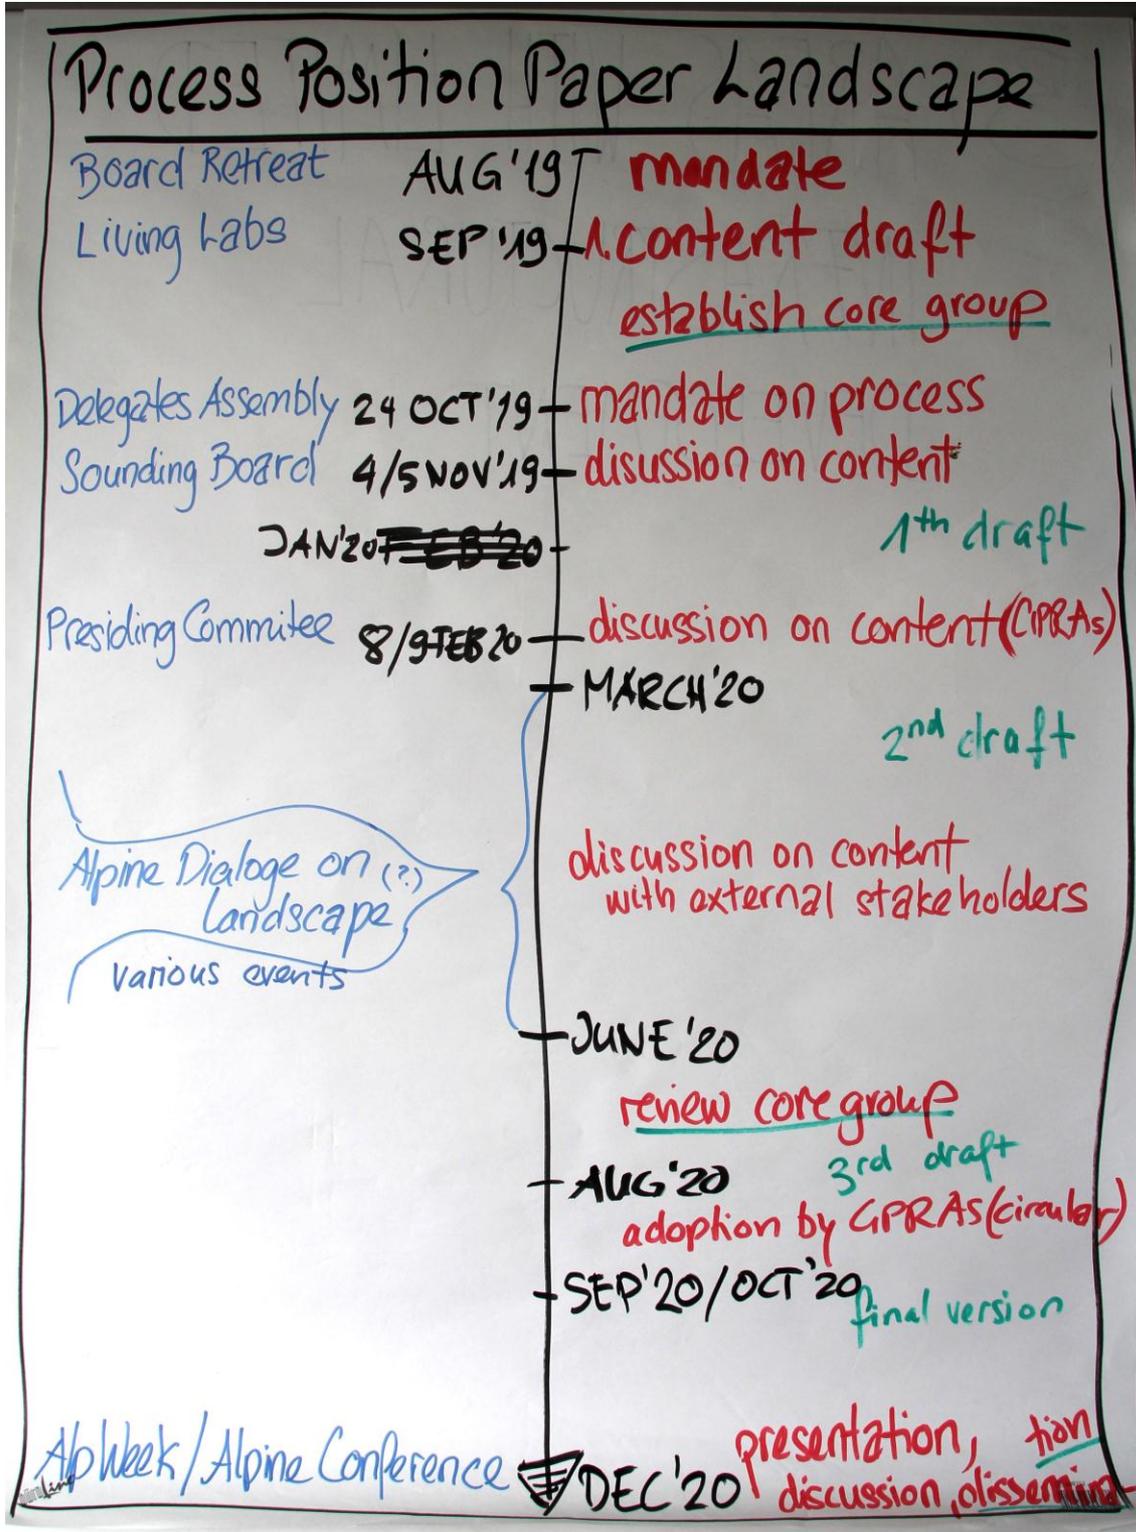

The Horizon 2020-funded project Alpine Community Economies Lab focuses on such a community economies approach in the Vallagarina valley in Northern Italy. It does so through a walk-in research lab and participatory workshops in close collaboration with local two partner projects: La Foresta – Community Academy – a social and cultural space at the train station of Rovereto and Comunità Frizzante – Making Drinks for Making Community, a fizzy drinks project focusing on local flavours and connecting people to the local landscape.

1. Negotiating landscape: processes and instruments

2. Agriculture and landscapes/produced landscapes

WORKSHOP LIVING LABS. 21.09.2019

② AGRICULTURE & LANDSCAPES

ISSUES

Biodiversity vs. production

- ↑ pesticides ↑ lack soil fertility
- higher profit with industrial agriculture
- lack of further formation → fast changing system → growing or dying
- image of farmer → lowest paid not attractive
- lack of time, new ideas of young p. and old knowledge/experience
- lack of importance of biodiversity in the long run
- organic & conventional farming in neighborhood
- flow of pesticides
- nutrients problem in ground water
- to many lifestyles (nutrients) → green desert
- fields → green desert
- usage of space for infrastructure
- organic farming should be the norm!
- find land for production for young people
- big farms runned by machines
- lack of interest of young for hard farming work

Consumer awareness
including costs of externalities
puzzled land

POSTULATION(S)

- approaches for how to find niches
- cooperations between small scale farmers
- CSA (Community supported agriculture)
- acceptance of balance/equality of value of biodiv./production
- "price reality!" → changes of law
- value ecologic services
- reduce livestock keeping
- protecting agriculture land
- support effort towards more biodiv. also in construction zone
- bring together people interested in farming and retiring people/farmer
- readable gardens
- permaculture approaches for esthetic landscape
- involving more people in farming
- Agroforestry
- making farming more attractive
- support changing time from work farming to organic.
- creating suitable niches (little ones)

Role of CIPRA & Recommendations

- lobbyism of changing laws
- focusing more on agriculture topics rather specific!
- support people take action "taking in our hands"
- bringing people together - spread information, sharing good practices
- promoting local produced food
- support in applying for subsidies.
- workshops on permaculture

farmer new identity as "landscape shaper"

EXTERNAL MOTIVATION IS NOT ENOUGH FOR LANDSCAPE PRESERVATION
Road Rule Modification

Reference: ANNA TSING ON THE PLANTATION SCENE

laws against speculation and inflation of price of land

putting fields together or exchange

rising awareness in general

OTHER IDEAS/BELONGS SOMEWHERE ELSE

advantage of a well shaped and biodiverse landscape is also for other sectors (tourism)

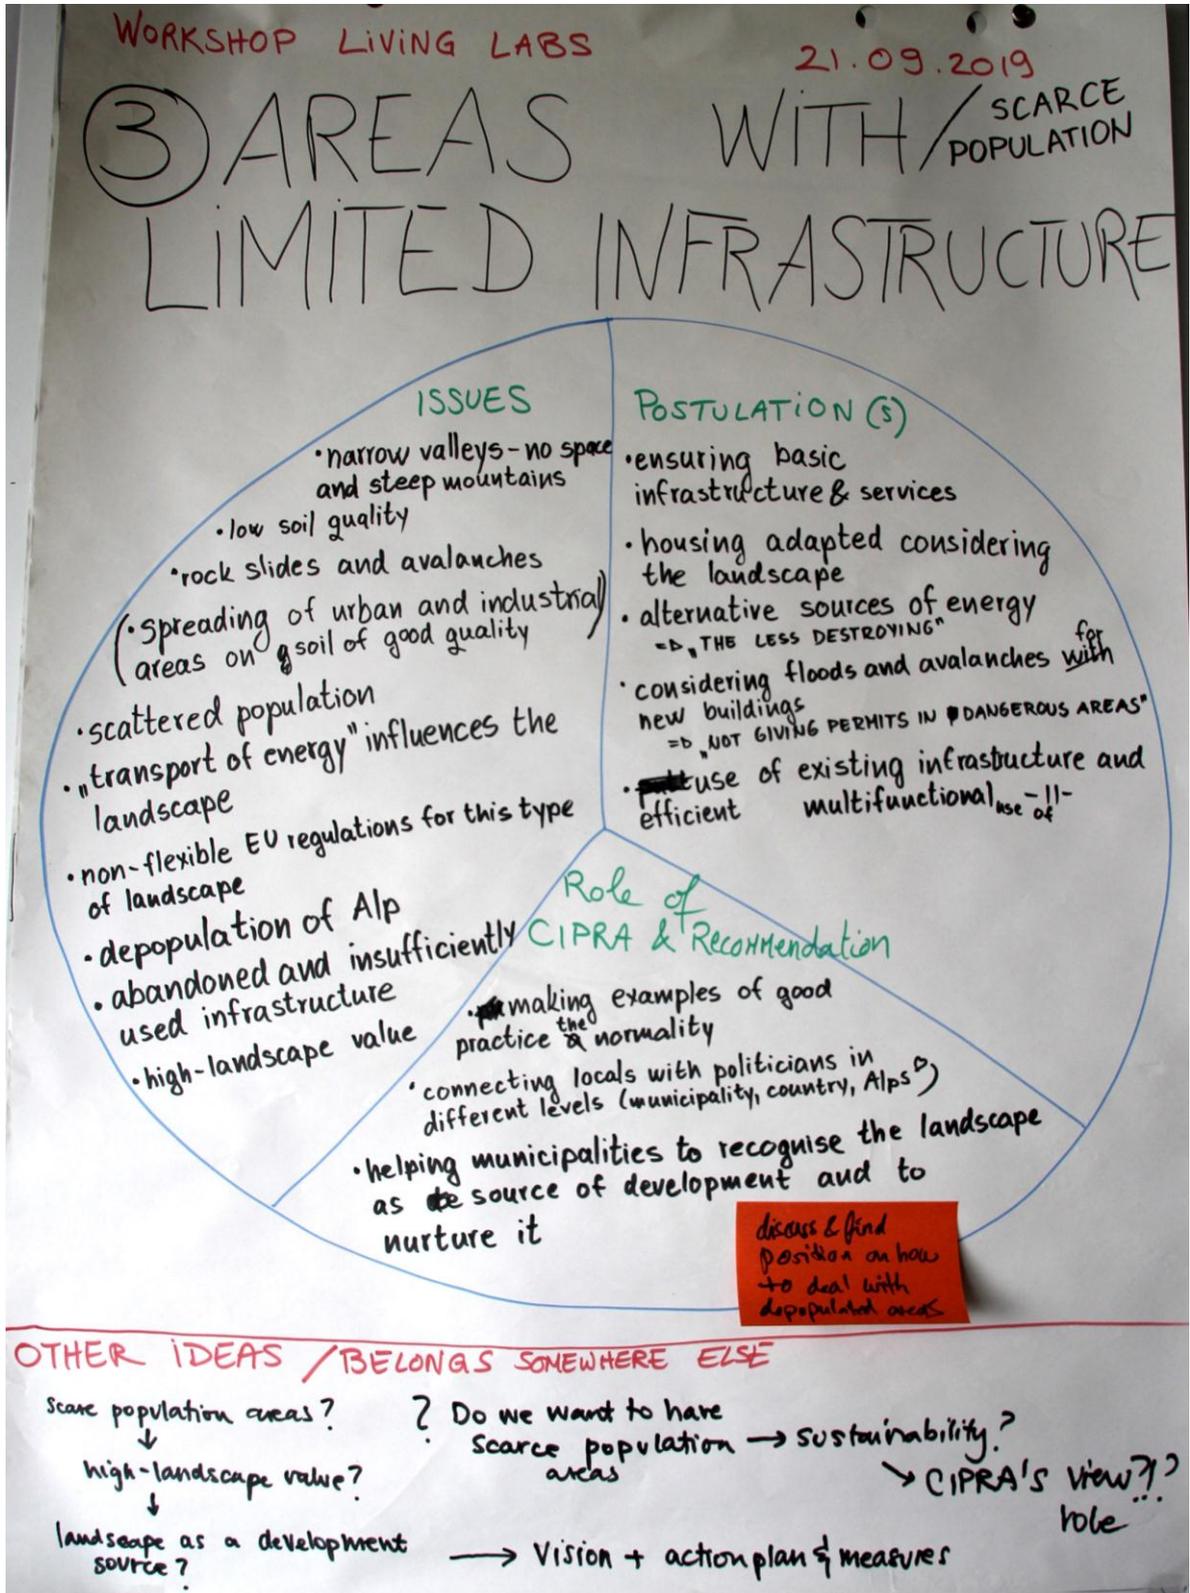

CHANGE EATING HABITS → CHANGES LANDSCAPE

GENUINO CLANDESTINO AS BEST PRACTICE

CREATE DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM FOR TINY PRODUCE

CIPRA should gather more information about ALPINE PARTICIPATION IN AGRICULTURE & EXTENSIVE ALPINE AGRICULTURE

3. Areas with limited infrastructural development

4. Common goods

5. Leisure and landscape

Evaluation

What did I learn?

How will I use what I've learned?

WHERE CAN I USE IT?

WHAT WILL I DO WITH WHAT I LEARNED?

I learned very much about community goods which I didn't know and would like to find out more about community spaces at my hometown and how they can be used in a good and modern way.

communication
organating

workshop on how to ~~share~~ have new ideas and thoughts for live
PROJECTS on the next upcoming projects

Exchange + spread my learned knowledge with other people?

Sealing in Bavaria is amazing big: are of hechenstein in 2 years

How a workshop is organized + how to speak in front of people learn from the experience what went wrong in the last project (reflect on it) and make it better in the next project

eg. it's hard to develop and realize a project with people you never see in person (on a national level) in diff countries

• in my job
• information from workshop -> for the next projects

Maybe I will use some of the ideas in my master's thesis

I WILL BE MORE CONFIDENT TO SPEAK AND SHARE MY IDEAS IN AN INTERNATIONAL CONTEXT

in future projects in ~~other activities~~ spreading awareness individually or in further education

I met a lot of nice people -> there contacts will be nice to use in future

I WILL USE THE THINGS THAT I LEARNED IN MY JOB

the difficulty of being a mediator...

What would I change?

What are you taking with you?

Conclusion and next steps

Last, but not least: Thank you, young moderators, for your courage and positive energy!
